Subject:	Proposal for a Directive of the European Parliament and of the Council laying down minimum rules to prevent and counter the facilitation of unauthorised entry, transit and stay in the Union, and replacing Council Directive 2002/90/EC and Council Framework Decision 2002/946 JHA - General approach

Introduction

On 28 November 2023, the Commission submitted a proposal for a Directive of the European Parliament and of the Council laying down minimum rules to prevent and counter the facilitation of unauthorised entry, transit and stay in the Union, and replacing Council Directive 2002/90/EC and Council Framework Decision 2002/946 JHA (ST 16149/23 + COR 1 + COR 2).

The proposal is based on Article 83(2) of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union.

The Working Party on Judicial Cooperation in Criminal Matters (COPEN) examined the proposal under the Spanish, Belgian and Hungarian Presidency. The text as it results from these examinations is set out in the Annex.

In the European Parliament, the Committee on Civil Liberties, Justice and Home Affairs (LIBE) has the lead responsibility. Ms Birgit Sippel was appointed rapporteur. No report has been tabled yet.

On 27 November 2024, the Mixed Committee and Coreper discussed the main issues set out below. A large majority of delegations indicated that they could support the solution that was found for these issues, and which has been set out in the Annex.

On 28 November 2024, the JHA Counsellors refined the texts of Article 11(3) and (4), and of corresponding recital 16: the changes made have been marked in the Annex.

Main issues

1) Humanitarian clause (Recital 7 in combination with Article 3)

The issue of the humanitarian clause refers to the idea that certain assistance to third country nationals to enter, transit or stay in the European Union – notably assistance to close family members or support to provide basic human needs – should not qualify as the criminal offence of migrant smuggling.

In its proposal for a Directive, the Commission had proposed to insert the clause in a recital, leaving Member States the choice how to deal with it. However, during the examination in the Working Party, some Member States suggested to move the clause to the operative part.

Apart from the question whether the issue of the humanitarian clause should be dealt with in the recitals or in the operative part, the positions of the delegations also differed on the exact wording of the clause.

After thorough consideration of the arguments presented throughout the year-long negotiations, and taking into account the discussions during recent meetings, it seems appropriate to address the issue of the humanitarian clause through a recital, see recital 7 (at page 8).

This text should be read in light of recital 6a, which underlines that this Directive is an instrument of minimum harmonization: Member States are free to adopt or maintain legislation providing for a broader incrimination than what is set out in this Directive.

2) Penalties for legal persons (Article 8, paragraph 3)

Further to a request by some delegations, a recital 13aa has been inserted in the text, and a paragraph 5 has been added to Article 8. The new texts address the particular situation of States to which other EU criminal law instruments do not apply, and which, in accordance with their national law, do not determine the amount of criminal or non-criminal fines for legal persons in proportion to the gravity of the offence committed by a natural person, but apply other criteria, including a criterion based on the lack of organisational structures and safeguards or other shortcomings within the organisation of the legal person.

Conclusion

In view of the above, the Permanent Representatives' Committee is invited to:

- (a) confirm agreement on the text of the general approach, as set out in the Annex to this note; and
- (b) recommend that the Council reach a general approach on this text, which will constitute the mandate for negotiations with the European Parliament.

Whereas:

- (1) The facilitation of unauthorised entry, transit and stay in the Union are criminal activities that put human life in danger and disrespect the dignity of people for the purpose of obtaining high profits, undermining fundamental rights. These criminal activities contribute to irregular migration, undermining the migration management objectives of the Union. The commission of such criminal activities is driven by increasing demand and the high profits obtained by criminal organisations. Preventing and countering those offences remains a priority for the Union.
- (2) Directive 2002/90/EC⁴ and Council Framework Decision 2002/946/JHA⁵ (the ‘Facilitators’ Package’) constitute the Union legal framework to counter the facilitation of unauthorised entry, transit and stay of third-country nationals. It establishes a common definition of the offences of facilitation of unauthorised entry, transit and residence, and sets up the penal framework for the sanctioning of such offences. To address evolving trends, and to further enhance the effectiveness of the Union framework to prevent and counter these offences, it is necessary to update the existing legal framework.

⁵ Council Framework Decision 2002/946/JHA of 28 November 2002 on the strengthening of the penal framework to prevent the facilitation of unauthorised entry, transit and residence (OJ L 328, 5.12.2002, p. 1., ELI: http://data.europa.eu/eli/dec_framw/2002/946/oj).

- (3) The European Council Conclusions of 9 February 2023 affirmed the need to reinforce Union action to prevent irregular migration and loss of life, notably by intensifying cooperation with countries of origin and transit, and by ensuring stronger cooperation between Member States and with Europol, Frontex and Eurojust. The renewed Action Plan against migrant smuggling (2021-2025) sets out the policy response to migrant smuggling, as an essential part of the comprehensive approach to migration set out in the New Pact on Migration and Asylum. It sets out actions in four priority areas: reinforcing cooperation with partner countries and international organisations; sanctioning migrant smugglers and preventing the exploitation of migrants; reinforcing cooperation and supporting the work of law enforcement and judicial authorities; and increasing the knowledge base.
- (4) The facilitation of unauthorised entry, transit and stay is a transnational phenomenon, and measures adopted at Union and national levels should recognise its international dimension. Union and national actions should therefore take into account the international commitments of the Union and its Member States, including in relation to the Protocol Against the Smuggling of Migrants by Land, Sea and Air, supplementing the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime, the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea, the International Convention for the Safety of Life at Sea, the International Convention on maritime Search and Rescue, the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child, as well as the work of the United Nations Office against Drugs and Crime. In particular, nothing in this Directive should affect the rights, obligations and responsibilities of Member States and individuals to provide assistance to third-country nationals, for humanitarian reasons or aimed at meeting their basic human needs, under applicable international law - including international human rights law and in particular, where applicable, the 1951 Convention relating to the status of refugees as amended by the Protocol of New York of 1967, the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea, and in compliance with legal obligations. This assistance can also include legal, linguistic or social advice or support.

(5) Taking account of the evolution of the activities aimed to facilitate unauthorised entry, transit and stay in the Union, as well as the legal obligations of the Union and the Member States under international law, the definition of the criminal offences should be further approximated in all Member States so that it covers the relevant conducts more comprehensively.

(6) In accordance with the principles of legality and proportionality of criminal law, and in order to address criminal activities that put human life in danger and disrespect the dignity of people for the purpose of obtaining profits, it is necessary to provide a precise and detailed definition of the criminal offences that counter these criminal behaviours. Assistance of unauthorised entry, transit or stay in the Union should constitute a criminal offence at least when there is a link with an actual or a promised financial or material benefit. This is without prejudice to the way in which Member States deal in their national law with facilitation conducts for which an actual or a promised financial or material benefit is not a constituent element of the offence.

~~This conduct should also be criminalised provided that this is highly likely to cause serious harm to the third-country nationals who were subject to the criminal offence or to any other person, even though there is no financial or material benefit or no promise of such benefit. It is necessary to establish a criminal offence in order to discourage the modus operandi of persons who publicly instigate, for instance through the internet, third-country nationals to enter, transit or stay in the Union without authorisation. Providing objective information or advice to third-country nationals on the conditions for the legal entry and stay in the Union, and on international protection, should not be understood as public instigation.~~

- (6a) This Directive is an instrument of minimum harmonisation. As a consequence, Member States are free to adopt or maintain legislation providing for a broader incrimination than what is set out in this Directive, in the interests of enhancing the effectiveness of the fight against migrant smugglers. Member States should ensure that intentionally assisting a third-country national to enter, or transit across, or stay within the territory of any Member State in breach of relevant Union law or the laws of the Member State concerned on the entry, transit and stay of third-country nationals constitutes a criminal offence at least where the person who carries out the conduct requests, receives or accepts, directly or indirectly, a financial or material benefit, or a promise thereof, or carries out the conduct in order to obtain such a benefit. However, since this Directive is an instrument of minimum harmonisation, Member States are free to criminalise such conduct when no financial or another material benefit has been provided.
- (7) Nothing in this Directive should be understood as requiring the criminalisation, on the one hand, of assistance provided to close family members and, on the other hand, of humanitarian assistance or the support of basic human needs provided to third-country nationals in compliance with the applicable national and international legal framework.

~~It is appropriate to provide for criminal liability where there is a link to a financial or material benefit, or where migrants are highly likely to be subjected to serious harm. These elements will usually not be fulfilled when it comes to assistance among family members or the provision of humanitarian assistance or the support of basic human needs. Third-country nationals should not become criminally liable for having been the subject to such criminal offences. Moreover, it is not the purpose of this Directive to criminalise, on the one hand, assistance provided to family members and, on the other hand, humanitarian assistance or the support of basic human needs provided to third-country nationals in compliance with legal obligations.~~

- (7a) Without prejudice to rules of national law relating to unauthorised entry in the territory of the Member State concerned, third-country nationals should not become criminally liable for the sole fact of having been the subject to the criminal offence of facilitating the unauthorised entry, transit across, or stay within the territory of any Member State.
- (8) The impact of facilitation of unauthorised entry, transit and stay extends beyond the Member State of unauthorised entry. Minimum rules concerning the definition of the criminal offences should encompass conducts taking place in the territory of any Member State, to allow Member States other than those of unauthorised entry to act on such offences, provided that the Member States concerned establish jurisdiction over these offences.
- (9) There is a need to distinguish between the criminal offence of facilitation of unauthorised entry, transit and stay in the Union and the aggravated criminal offences that create higher harm to individuals and to society. The levels of penalties should reflect the higher social concern regarding more serious and harmful conducts, therefore aggravated offences should be sanctioned by more severe criminal penalties.
- (10) Member States should apply this Directive in accordance and in full compliance with the 1951 Convention Relating to the Status of Refugees as amended by the Protocol of New York of 1967, obligations related to access to international protection, in particular the principle of non-refoulement, and fundamental rights.
- (11) Penalties for the criminal offences should be effective, dissuasive and proportionate. To this end, minimum levels for the maximum term of imprisonment should be set for natural persons. Accessory measures are often effective and, therefore, should be also available in criminal proceedings.

~~Considering the possible risk to public policy and public security that they may pose, third-country nationals who committed the offences defined in this Directive should be subject to return in accordance with Directive 2008/115/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council⁶ or in accordance with national law where Member States have made use of Article 2(2), point (b), of that Directive, either after having served the prison sentence in a Member State or in view of serving the prison sentence, or part of it, in a third country, without prejudice to more favourable provisions applicable by virtue of Union or national law; furthermore, without prejudice to more favourable provisions applicable by virtue of Union or national law, those third-country nationals should be prohibited to re-enter the territory of the Member States for an appropriate period of time to be determined on a case-by-case basis, and that can reach 10 years in the most serious cases. This should not affect the discretion of judges or courts in criminal proceedings to impose appropriate sanctions in the individual cases.~~

- (11a) The maximum terms of imprisonment provided for in this Directive for the criminal offences committed by natural persons should apply at least to the most serious forms of such offences. The criminal law of all Member States includes provisions on homicide, aggravated assault, as well as assault on law enforcement, or other offences where the use of serious violence is part of the crime, either committed intentionally or with serious negligence. Member States should be able to have recourse to those general provisions, including provisions on aggravating circumstances, when transposing the provisions in this Directive that relate to criminal offences that cause the death of a person, whether committed intentionally or with serious negligence.

- (11b) Where this Directive provides that an unlawful conduct only constitutes a criminal offence where it is carried out intentionally and, by seriously endangering the life of a third-country national, causes the death of that person, the notion of ‘intention’ should be interpreted in accordance with national law, taking into account relevant case law of the Court of Justice of the European Union. Nothing in this Directive should be understood as requiring strict liability for any consequence arising from the activities qualified as criminal offences in this Directive.
- ~~(12) The assessment of the seriousness of the offence should also extend to attempts to commit the offence that do not result in unauthorised entry in the Union. Attempts that cause the death of one or more third-country nationals should be sanctioned with more severe penalties than other types of attempts. Setting minimum rules on the maximum level of penalties at Union level for such attempts is justified and proportionate in view of the transnational dimension of the offence, and the fact that an attempt to commit the offence resulting in the death of third-country nationals bears the same gravity as a committed offence resulting in death.~~

- (13) Where national law provides for it, legal persons should be held criminally liable for the facilitation of unauthorised entry, transit and stay in the Union. Member States whose national law does not provide for the criminal liability of legal persons should ensure that their administrative sanctioning systems provide for effective, dissuasive and proportionate sanction types and levels, as laid down in this Directive in order to achieve its objectives. They should be accompanied by accessory measures. ~~The financial situation of legal persons should be considered to ensure the dissuasiveness of the sanction imposed with criminal and non-criminal fines taking into account worldwide turnover of the legal persons.~~ The gravity of the conduct, as well as the individual, financial and other circumstances of the legal persons concerned, should be taken into account to ensure that the penalty imposed is effective, dissuasive and proportionate. Member States should be able to set the maximum levels of fines either as a percentage of the total worldwide turnover of the legal person concerned, or in fixed amounts. Member States should decide which of those two options they will use, when transposing this Directive.
- (13aa) However, given that this Directive constitutes a development of the Schengen acquis, account should be taken of the specific situation of those Member States to which other EU criminal law instruments do not apply, and which, in accordance with their national law, do not determine the amount of criminal or non-criminal fines for legal persons in proportion to the gravity of the offence committed by a natural person, but apply other criteria, including a criterion based on the lack of organisational structures and safeguards or other shortcomings within the organisation of the legal person. If imperative to preserve the coherence of the national penalty system for legal persons, those Member States should have the possibility to set the maximum amount of fines for legal persons at a level compatible with their national system, provided that, as a result, the level of penalties applicable to legal persons is consistent with the one provided for in national law for crimes of a comparable seriousness and that the penalties are effective proportionate and dissuasive.

- (13a) Where Member States, in the determination of fines to be imposed on legal persons, opt to implement the criterion of the total worldwide turnover of a legal person, they should decide whether to calculate that turnover based on the business year preceding that in which the criminal offence was committed, or on the business year preceding that of the decision to impose the fine. They should also consider providing for rules for cases where it is not possible to determine the amount of a fine on the basis of the total worldwide turnover of the legal person in the business year preceding that in which the criminal offence was committed, or in the business year preceding that of the decision to impose the fine. In such cases, Member States should be able to take into account other criteria, such as total worldwide turnover in a different business year. Where those rules include the setting of fixed amounts of fines, it should not be necessary for the maximum levels of those amounts to reach the levels established in this Directive as the minimum requirement for the maximum level of fines set in fixed amounts.
- (13b) Where Member States opt for a maximum level of fines set in fixed amounts, such levels should be laid down in national law. The highest levels of such fines should apply to the most serious forms of criminal offences defined in this Directive committed by legal persons of financial strength. Member States should be able to determine the method of calculation of those highest levels of fines, including specific conditions therefor. Member States are invited to regularly review the levels of fines set in fixed amounts having regard to rates of inflation and other fluctuations in monetary value, in accordance with procedures laid down in their national law. Member States that do not have the euro as their currency should provide for maximum levels of fines in their currency that correspond to the levels determined in this Directive in euro on the date of its entry into force. Those Member States are invited to regularly review the levels of fines also with regard to the development of the exchange rate.

(13c) The establishment of the maximum level of fines is without prejudice to the discretion of judges or courts in criminal proceedings to impose appropriate penalties in individual cases. As this Directive does not establish any minimum levels of fines, the judges or courts should, in any case, impose appropriate penalties taking into account the individual, financial and other circumstances of the legal person concerned and the gravity of the conduct.

(14) The notion of aggravating circumstances should be understood either as facts allowing the judge to pronounce a higher sentence for the same offence than the one normally incurred without these facts, or as the possibility of retaining several offences cumulatively in order to increase the level of sanction. ~~Therefore,~~ Member States should not be obliged to provide for specific aggravating circumstances where national law already provides for separate criminal offences or a general ability for national courts to weigh all relevant aggravating circumstances, and this can lead to more severe penalties.

~~Effectiveness of sanctions imposed in practice should be fostered through providing for aggravating circumstances that reflect the severity of the criminal offence. Graver circumstances should include situations conducive to other unlawful activities, such as exploitation, including sexual exploitation, instrumentalisation, dispossession of identity documents, and involvement in illegal employment.~~

(14a) A situation of instrumentalisation could arise where a third country or a hostile non-state actor encourages or facilitates the movement of third-country nationals or stateless persons to the external borders of the Union or to a Member State, where such actions are indicative of an intention of a third country or a hostile non-state actor to destabilise the Union or a Member State, and where such actions are liable to put at risk essential functions of a Member State, including the maintenance of law and order or the safeguard of its national security.

- (14b) Situations in which non-state actors are involved in organised crime, in particular smuggling, should not be considered as instrumentalisation of migrants when there is no aim to destabilise the Union or a Member State.
- (14c) Humanitarian assistance should not be considered as instrumentalisation of migrants when there is no aim to destabilise the Union or a Member State.
- (14d) As regards Cyprus, Council Regulation (EC) No 866/2004⁷ provides for specific rules that apply to the line between the areas of the Republic of Cyprus in which the Government of the Republic of Cyprus exercises effective control and those areas in which it does not exercise effective control. Although that line does not constitute an external border, a situation where a third country or a hostile non-state actor encourages or facilitates the movement of third-country nationals or stateless persons to cross that line should be considered as instrumentalisation, if all the other elements of instrumentalisation are present.

⁷ Council Regulation (EC) No 866/2004 of 29 April 2004 on a regime under Article 2 of Protocol No 10 of the Act of Accession (OJ L 161, 30.4.2004, p. 128–143).

The notion of ‘instrumentalisation’ should be understood as a situation where a third country or hostile non-state actor, encourages or facilitates the movement of third country nationals and stateless persons to the external borders of the Union or to a Member State, with the aim of destabilising the Union or a Member State where such actions are indicative of an intention of a third country or a hostile non-state actor to destabilise the Union or a Member State, and where such actions are liable to put at risk essential functions of a Member State, including the maintenance of law and order or the safeguard of its national security. Situations in which non-state actors are involved in organised crime, in particular smuggling, should not be considered as instrumentalisation of migrants when there is no aim to destabilise the Union or a Member State. Humanitarian assistance should not be considered as instrumentalisation of migrants when there is no aim to destabilise the Union or a Member State. As regards Cyprus, Council Regulation (EC) No 866/2004 (12) provides for specific rules that apply to the line between the areas of the Republic of Cyprus in which the Government of the Republic of Cyprus exercises effective control and those areas in which it does not exercise effective control. Although that line does not constitute an external border, a situation where a third country or a hostile non-state actor encourages or facilitates the movement of third-country nationals or stateless persons to cross that line should be considered as instrumentalisation, if all the other elements of instrumentalisation are present.

- (15) The approximation and effectiveness of sanction levels imposed in practice should also be fostered with common mitigating circumstances that reflect the contribution provided by natural or legal persons that perpetrated a criminal offence referred to in this Directive through cooperation with the competent national authorities in the investigation or detection of such offence. In any case, it should remain within the discretion of the judge or the court to determine whether to decrease the sentence, taking into account the specific circumstances in each individual case.

- (16) Member States should lay down rules concerning limitation periods in order to enable them to counter the criminal offences referred to in this Directive effectively, without prejudice to national rules that do not set limitation periods for investigation, prosecution and enforcement. In addition, under this Directive, Member States are free, in accordance with their national legal systems, to set the limitation periods for the enforcement of penalties imposed following a final conviction, either on the basis of the penalty actually imposed, or, alternatively, on the basis of the maximum penalty foreseen for the offence. Accordingly, this Directive sets out appropriate limitation periods for each of these options. As a general rule, the start of a limitation period should be the moment when the offence was committed. However, as this Directive sets minimum rules, Member States can provide in their national legislation that the limitation period starts later, for instance at the moment when the offence was discovered, provided that such moment is clearly defined in accordance with national law. Where Member States are permitted under this Directive to establish shorter limitation periods, provided that the period may be interrupted or suspended in the event of specified acts, such acts may be defined in accordance with the legal system of each Member State.
- (17) To counter the facilitation of unauthorised entry, transit and stay in the Union, it is of utmost importance to ensure the effective seizure of the proceedings of the crime, as well as of the instrumentalities that are used to commit the criminal offences, including for instance boats, engines and other boat components and vehicles. For this purpose, full use should be made of existing instruments on the freezing and confiscation of proceeds and instrumentalities of crime, such as Directive 2024/1260/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council⁸.

- (18) Considering the cross-border nature of the criminal offences referred to in this Directive, the mobility of perpetrators of illegal conducts and the possibility of cross-border investigations, it is necessary to lay down rules on the establishment of jurisdiction by Member States in order to counter such conduct effectively. The unauthorised transit across or stay taking place in whole or in part in the territory of a Member State should allow a Member State different from the Member State of first unauthorised entry to establish jurisdiction. The gravity and the cross-border nature of the offences referred to in this Directive require that jurisdiction be established ~~not only on~~ over natural persons who are nationals of the Member State concerned. For the same reasons, it is necessary that Member States establish jurisdiction over criminal offences committed on board of ships and aircrafts registered in the Member State or flying its flag. Member States should also be allowed to extend their jurisdiction to offences which have been committed outside their territory ~~but also on~~ by third-country nationals habitually residing in ~~their~~ its territory. ~~Jurisdiction over and by~~ legal persons should be established when these are established in the Member State concerned or in respect of any business carried out in whole or in part in its territory. ~~For the same reasons, it is necessary that Member States establish jurisdiction over criminal offences committed on board of ships and aircrafts registered in the Member State or flying its flag.~~ Member States, including those other than that of first unauthorised entry, should be allowed to establish jurisdiction in relation to criminal offences referred to in this Directive when the conduct has been committed outside their territory and this results aims in at the unauthorised entry, or transit or stay of the third-country nationals subject to the offence in the concerned Member State.
- (19) Where assistance is provided for a third-country national to reach the territory of a Member State, the concerned Member States may also be able to establish their jurisdiction with regard to attempts, even if the third-country national does not enter their territory. ~~Member States should at least establish their jurisdiction with regard to the attempt of an offence that caused the death of a third-country national.~~

- (19a) Member States are encouraged to criminalise migrant smuggling regardless of where the offence was committed and to consider establishing jurisdiction over migrant smuggling outside of their territories, beyond the minimum rules set forth in this Directive, in line with international law.
- (20) Where a criminal offence falls within jurisdiction of more than one Member State, the Member States concerned should cooperate to determine which Member State is best placed to prosecute. Where the competent authorities of the Member States concerned decide, following cooperation or direct consultations under Council Framework Decision 2009/948/JHA⁹, to centralise criminal proceedings in a single Member State through the transfer of criminal proceedings, ~~the~~ Regulation (EU) 2024/... of the European Parliament and of the Council of 27 November 2024 on the transfer of proceedings in criminal matters.../... [adopted but not yet published]¹⁰ should be used for such a transfer. For this purpose, the relevant criteria of Article 5 of that Regulation should be duly taken into account. The priority and weight of such criteria should be based on the facts and merits of each individual case.
- (21) To counter the facilitation of unauthorised entry, transit and stay in the Union, both criminal justice and preventive mechanisms should be used. The prevention of the criminal offences referred to in this Directive should mitigate the need for criminal justice response and should have wider benefits in crime reduction. Prevention ~~Such measures~~ should aim at raising public awareness, and include appropriate measures such as information campaigns, research and education programmes, with respect for national competence and national law. These should be carried out in cooperation with other Member States, relevant Union agencies and third countries.

¹⁰ The text was adopted on 5 November and it was signed on 27 November. Publication – with number of the Regulation – will probably be somewhere in December.

- (22) Lack of resources and enforcement powers for national authorities which detect, investigate, prosecute or adjudicate the criminal offences referred to in this Directive creates obstacles for the effective prevention and punishment thereof. In particular, a shortage of resources may prevent authorities from taking action or limit their enforcement actions, allowing offenders to escape liability or to receive punishment that does not correspond to the gravity of the criminal offence. Minimum criteria concerning resources and enforcement powers should therefore be established.
- (23) The effective functioning of the enforcement chain depends on a range of specialist skills. The complexity of the challenges posed by the facilitation of unauthorised entry, transit and stay in the Union, and the nature of such criminal offences require a multidisciplinary approach, a high level of legal knowledge, technical expertise and financial support as well as a high level of training and specialisation within all relevant competent authorities. Member States should provide training appropriate to the function of those who detect, investigate, prosecute or adjudicate criminal offences concerning the facilitation of unauthorised entry, transit and stay in the Union.
- (24) To ensure successful enforcement, Member States should make available to competent authorities effective investigative tools for the criminal offences referred to in this Directive, such as those available under ~~included in~~ their national law for combatting organised crime or other serious criminal offences ~~crimes~~. Such tools could include ~~including for instance~~ the interception of communications, covert surveillance including electronic surveillance, monitoring of bank accounts and other financial investigation tools. Those ~~These~~ tools should be used ~~applied~~ in line with the principle of proportionality and in full respect of the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union. In accordance with national law, the nature and gravity of the criminal offences under investigation should justify the use of these investigative tools. The right to the protection of personal data should be respected.

- (25) ~~Online content constituting or facilitating criminal offences referred to in this Directive, notably providing assistance to or publicly instigating unauthorised entry, transit and stay in the EU through the internet, will be subject to measures pursuant to Regulation (EU) 2022/2065 of the European Parliament and of the Council¹¹ as regards illegal content.~~
- (26) To effectively tackle the facilitation of unauthorised entry, transit and stay in the Union, it is necessary that competent authorities in the Member States collect accurate ~~-, consistent and comparable~~ data on the scale of and trends in the criminal offences referred to in this Directive, ~~the efforts to combat them and their results.~~ Member States should collect and report to the Commission as a minimum relevant existing statistical data available at the central level on such offences. The Commission should regularly assess and publish the results based on data transmitted by the Member States. Member States should also regularly collect and disseminate existing statistical data and information on the application of this Directive to allow for the monitoring of its implementation. Statistical data and information should be ~~comparable between the Member States and~~ collected on the basis of common minimum standards.
- (27) Since the objective of this Directive, namely to lay down minimum rules to prevent and counter the facilitation of unauthorised entry, transit and stay in the Union, cannot be sufficiently achieved by the Member States and can therefore, by reason of the scale and effect of the action, be better achieved at Union level, the Union may adopt measures in accordance with the principle of subsidiarity as set out in Article 5 of the Treaty on European Union. In accordance with the principle of proportionality, as set out in that Article, this Directive does not go beyond what is necessary to achieve that objective.
