Proposal for a

COUNCIL FRAMEWORK DECISION

on preventing and combating trafficking in human beings, and protecting victims,

repealing Framework Decision 2002/629/JHA

{SEC(2009) 358}

{SEC(2009) 359}

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM

1. CONTEXT OF THE PROPOSAL

1.1. Grounds for and objectives of the proposal

Trafficking in human beings is considered one of the most serious crimes worldwide, a gross violation of human rights, a modern form of slavery, and an extremely profitable business for organised crime. It consists of the recruitment, transfer or receipt of persons, carried out with coercive, deceptive or abusive means, for the purpose of exploitation including sexual or labour exploitation, forced labour, domestic servitude or other forms of exploitation including the removal of organs.

Therefore the response to trafficking must be robust, and aimed at preventing and prosecuting the crime, and protecting its victims.

1.2. General context

Several EU Member States are major countries of destination for trafficking in human beings flows coming from third countries. In addition, there is evidence of flows of trafficking within the EU. It is reasonable to estimate from the available figures that several hundred thousand people are trafficked into the EU area or within the EU area every year.

Social vulnerability is arguably the principal root cause of trafficking in human beings. Vulnerability derives from economic and social factors such as poverty, gender discrimination, armed conflicts, domestic violence, dysfunctional families, and personal circumstances such as age or health conditions or disabilities. Such vulnerability is used by international organised crime networks to facilitate migration and subsequently severely exploit people by use of force, threat, coercion, or various forms of abuse such as debt bondage. In fact the high level of profits generated is a major underlying driver. The demand for sexual services and cheap labour is a concurrent driver.

1.3. Existing provisions in the area of the proposal

The UN Convention on the Rights of the Child, adopted in 1989 seeks to protect children from all forms of sexual exploitation and sexual abuse. This obligation extends to sexual exploitation and abuse perpetrated against children in the context of trafficking in human beings.

In 2000, the UN adopted a Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, especially Women and Children, supplementing the UN Convention against Transnational Organized Crime. The Protocol was the first comprehensive international instrument dealing with trafficking in human beings. As of March 2009, the Protocol has been ratified by 23 EU Member States, and the remaining 4 have signed it. The European Community signed and approved the Protocol.

The Council of Europe Convention on Action against Trafficking in Human Beings provides a comprehensive and coherent framework covering prevention, cooperation between different actors, protection of and assistance to victims, and an obligation to criminalise trafficking in human beings. Implementing such measures would lead to significant improvements. The Convention has been ratified by 12 EU Member States. Another 13 have signed it and are going through the ratification process.

The Framework Decision (FD) on combating trafficking in human beings was adopted on 19 July 2002 as a response to a generally perceived need to address the serious criminal offence of trafficking in human beings at EU level. A report on the implementation of the FD was adopted by the Commission in May 2006.

Directive 2004/81/EC provides for assistance and residence status for victims who are third-country nationals. The Commission will report on the implementation of Directive 2004/81/EC in autumn 2009 and will consider appropriate measures to further reinforce the protection offered to victims by Member States.

1.4. Consistency with the other policies and objectives of the Union

The fight against all forms of gender-based violence including trafficking in human beings forms integral part of the commitment taken by the Commission in the Roadmap on Gender equality.¹ The fight against child trafficking is also included in the strategy on the rights of the child.² The objective of fighting trafficking in human beings and assisting victims is consistent with the regulation contained in Council Framework Decision 2001/220/JHA on the standing of victims in criminal proceedings,³ and Council Directive 2004/81/EC on residence permit,⁴ which deals with immigration issues and only applies to third country nationals. All the provisions included in this Framework Decision apply in so far as the issue is not covered by the above mentioned Directive. The objective of fighting against trafficking in human beings is also consistent with Council Directive 2004/80/EC relating to compensation for crime victims which aims at facilitating access to compensation in cross-border situations,⁵ and with Council Framework Decision 2008/841/JHA on the fight against organised crime.⁶ Trafficking in human beings is included in the list of crimes which give rise to surrender pursuant a European arrest warrant in accordance with Council Framework Decision 2002/584/JHA on the European arrest warrant.⁷ The objectives stated above are fully consistent with these instruments, as well as with the Council of Europe Convention on action against Trafficking in Human beings and with the mandates of Europol and Eurojust.

Any action of the Union in this field must respect fundamental rights and observe the principles recognised in particular by the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union (EU Charter) and the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (ECHR). Member States, when implementing Union law, must do so in accordance with these rights and principles.

This proposal was made subject to an in-depth scrutiny to make sure that its provisions are in full compatibility with fundamental rights and notably human dignity, prohibition of torture and inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment, prohibition of slavery and forced labour, the rights of the child, right to liberty and security, freedom of expression and information, protection of personal data, the right to an effective remedy and to a fair trial and the principles of legality and proportionality of criminal offences and penalties.

Particular attention was paid to Article 5(3) of the EU Charter which explicitly prohibits trafficking in human beings. In addition, Article 24 of the EU Charter was of importance, since many of the victims of trafficking in human beings are children. Provisions on protection and assistance to victims have a positive impact on fundamental rights. The right to be protected from slavery, forced labour and servitude has been acknowledged by the European Court of Human Rights. The right of the victim to accurate, impartial, effective, and quick investigation is also involved, and would be made effective by an increased recognition of the role of the victim in the criminal procedure.

A possible negative impact deriving from the increased role of the victim in criminal proceedings could accrue, if this strengthened role would be such as to endanger the defendant's procedural rights, in particular the right to a fair trial (Article 47 EU Charter) and the right of defence (Article 48 of EU Charter) However, the European Court of Human Rights has established clear principles to reconcile the respective rights of the defendant and the victim. Therefore full compatibility with defence rights has been ensured by a careful drafting of the legislative text, which is the basis for appropriate implementation by Member States.

2. CONSULTATION OF INTERESTED PARTIES AND IMPACT ASSESSMENT

2.1. Consultation of interested parties

2.1.1. Consultation methods, main sectors targeted and general profile of consulted parties

Following the request from the Council for an evaluation of the implementation of the EU Plan, a questionnaire was circulated by the Commission in December 2007 among the Member States (MS). 23 MS, plus Norway, replied. The results fed into the Commission Working Document adopted on 17 October 2008.

Three consultative meetings were held with a view to drafting the impact assessment. The Group of Experts on Trafficking in Human Beings met on 2 and 3 October 2008, and after extensive discussion issued a written opinion. A consultative meeting with experts from different backgrounds including governments, law enforcement agencies, NGOs, international organisations and universities was held on 7 October 2008. The participants were subsequently invited to transmit written comments, and several experts did so. A meeting with Member States' representatives was held on 17 October 2008.

2.1.2. Summary of views and how they have been taken into account

- The European Commission's Group of Experts on Trafficking in Human Beings, in its written opinion, underlined as guiding principles the need for an adequate legal framework in each country, the need to make human rights a paramount issue, to take a holistic, coordinated and integrated approach to link government policies on trafficking in human beings to migration policies, to respect children's rights, to promote research about trafficking in human beings and to monitor the impact of anti-trafficking policies.

- Many stakeholders agreed on the need for specific provisions aimed at strengthening investigation and prosecution. The crucial role of assistance measures was generally emphasised.
- The issue of introducing a specific obligation to criminalise clients who knowingly use sexual services from a trafficked person was controversial among stakeholders. Several MS pointed out that in any case such a provision should not be binding.

2.2. Collection and use of expertise

There was no need for external expertise.

2.3. Impact assessment

Various policy options have been examined as a means to achieve the objectives of preventing and combating trafficking in human beings more effectively, and better protecting victims.

- Policy option (1): No new EU action

The EU would take no action to combat trafficking in human beings, while Member States may continue the process of signature and ratification of the Council of Europe Convention on Action against Trafficking in Human Beings.

- Policy Option (2): Non legislative measures

FD 2004/629/JHA would not be amended. Non-legislative measures could be put in place in the areas of victim support schemes, monitoring, prevention measures in countries of destination, prevention measures in countries of origin, training, and law enforcement cooperation.

- Policy option (3): New legislation on prosecution, victim support, prevention and monitoring

A new FD would be adopted, incorporating the provision of the existing FD, along with certain provisions of the CoE Convention and additional elements. In particular, the new FD would contain provisions in the areas of substantive criminal law, jurisdiction and prosecution, victims' rights in criminal proceedings, victim assistance, special protective measures for children, prevention, and monitoring.

- Policy option (4): New legislation (as in option 3) + non legislative measures (as in option 2)

- A new FD would be adopted, incorporating the existing FD and including new provisions. The new FD would be supplemented by non-legislative measures, and in particular those identified in option 2.

- Following the analysis of economic impacts, social impacts, and impacts on fundamental rights, options 3 and 4 present the best approach to the problem and should fully achieve the identified objectives. The preferred option would be option 4.

3. LEGAL ELEMENTS OF THE PROPOSAL

3.1. Summary of the proposed action

The new FD, in addition to provisions in the current FD, would include the following new elements:

A Substantive criminal law provisions

- Definition;
- Aggravating circumstances and penalties;
- Non application of sanctions to the victim.

B Jurisdiction and prosecution

- Broader and more binding extraterritorial jurisdiction rule;
- Coordination of prosecution; such a provision may be superseded once the Proposal for a Framework Decision on conflicts of jurisdiction in criminal proceedings is adopted.⁸
- Investigative tools.

C Victims' rights in criminal proceedings

- Special treatment aimed at preventing secondary victimisation;
- Protection on the basis of a risk assessment;
- Compensation, including access to existing funds.

D Victim support

- Establishment of mechanisms for early identification and assistance of victims;
- Standard of assistance including access to necessary medical treatment, counselling, and psychological assistance;
- Special measures for children.

E Prevention

- Action aimed at discouraging the demand for sexual services and cheap labour;

⁸ Proposal for a Council Framework Decision on prevention and settlement of conflicts of jurisdiction in criminal proceedings, tabled on 20 January 2009 by the Czech Republic, Poland, Slovenia, Slovakia, and Sweden. Council Document No 5208/09.

- Training;
- Criminalisation of users of services exacted from a person, with the knowledge that the person has been trafficked.

F Monitoring

- Establishment of National Rapporteurs or equivalent mechanisms.

3.2. Added value of the proposal, compared to the 2005 CoE Convention on action against trafficking in human beings

The proposal builds upon the CoE Convention and adopts the same holistic approach including prevention, prosecution, protection of victims, and monitoring. Moreover, the proposal shows the following main elements of added value:

- New provisions envisaging specific treatments for vulnerable victims in criminal proceedings, aimed at preventing secondary victimisation (Article 9).
- Broader scope of the provision on non application of sanctions to victims for their involvement in unlawful activities, whatever illicit means have been used by traffickers (Article 6).
- Higher standard of assistance to victims, especially concerning medical treatment (Article 10).
- Broader and more binding extraterritorial jurisdiction rule, obliging Member States to prosecute nationals and habitual residents who have committed the crime of trafficking outside the territory of the Member State (Article 8).
- Precise level of penalties adapted to the severity of the offences (Article 3).
- In addition, the integration of provisions which have similar content into the EU acquis shows the advantages related to the stronger bond created by the EU legal order, namely the immediate entering into force, and the monitoring of implementation.

3.3. Legal basis

Articles 29, 31(1)(e), 34(2)(b) TEU.

4. SUBSIDIARITY PRINCIPLE

The objectives of the proposal cannot be sufficiently achieved by the Member States alone, for the following reasons.

The fight against trafficking in human beings requires coordinated efforts by Member States, as well as cooperation at an international level in order to achieve the aims. Differences in legal treatment in the different Member States hinder coordinated efforts and hamper international law enforcement and judicial cooperation.

Action by the European Union will better achieve the objectives of the proposal for the following reason.

The proposal will approximate Member States' substantive criminal law and rules on procedure in a more extensive way than the current Framework Decision. This will have a positive impact on international law enforcement and judicial cooperation, and protection and assistance given to victims. The proposal therefore complies with the subsidiarity principle.

5. PROPORTIONALITY PRINCIPLE

The proposal complies with the proportionality principle in that it is confined to the minimum required in order to achieve the stated objectives at European level and does not go beyond what is necessary for that purpose.

6. CHOICE OF INSTRUMENTS

Proposed instrument: Framework Decision.

Other means would not be adequate. In the fight against trafficking in human beings only a Framework Decision permits approximation of national legislation, and is necessary to improve international law enforcement and judicial cooperation.

7. BUDGETARY IMPLICATION

The proposal has no implication for the Community budget.

8. ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Repeal of existing legislation

Adoption of the proposal will lead to the repeal of existing legislation.

Proposal for a

on preventing and combating trafficking in human beings, and protecting victims,

repealing Framework Decision 2002/629/JHA

THE COUNCIL OF THE EUROPEAN UNION,

Having regard to the Treaty on European Union, and in particular Article 29, Article 31(1)(e) and Article 34(2)(b) thereof,

Having regard to the proposal from the Commission,

Having regard to the opinion of the European Parliament,⁹

Whereas:

- (1) Trafficking in human beings is a serious crime, often committed in the framework of organised crime, and a gross violation of human rights.
- (2) The European Union is committed to the prevention of and fight against trafficking in human beings, and to the protection of the rights of trafficked persons. For this purpose, Council Framework Decision 2002/629/JHA of 19 July 2002 on combating trafficking in human beings,¹⁰ and an EU Plan on best practices, standards and procedures for combating and preventing trafficking in human beings (2005/C 311/01)¹¹ were adopted.
- (3) This Framework Decision adopts an integrated and holistic approach to the fight against trafficking in human beings. More rigorous prevention and prosecution, and protection of victims' rights, are major objectives of this Framework Decision. Children are more vulnerable and therefore at greater risk of falling victim to trafficking in human beings. All the provisions of this Framework Decision should be applied in the light of the best interests of the child, in accordance with the 1989 United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child.¹²
- (4) The 2000 United Nations Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, especially Women and Children supplementing the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organised Crime¹³ and the 2005 Council of Europe Convention on Action against Trafficking in Human Beings¹⁴ are crucial steps in the process of enhancing international cooperation against trafficking in human beings. In order to enhance the process of approximation of legislation, this Framework Decision adopts the broad definition of the crime included in the above mentioned UN and CoE instruments. The definition also covers trafficking in human beings for the purpose of the removal of organs, which can be linked with organ trafficking and constitutes a serious violation of human dignity and physical integrity.

- (5) Penalties should be effective, dissuasive, and proportionate to the gravity of the crime, also with a view to making investigation and prosecution more effective, and improving international law enforcement and judicial cooperation. Aggravating circumstances should take into account the need to protect particularly vulnerable victims including all child victims and adults who are vulnerable because of personal circumstances, or physical or psychological consequences of the crime.
- (6) Victims should be protected from prosecution and punishment, following a decision of the competent authority, for unlawful activities they have been involved in as a direct consequence of being subjected to any of the illicit means used by traffickers, such as violations of immigration laws, the use of false documents or offences envisaged by prostitution laws. An additional aim of such protection is to encourage them to act as witnesses in criminal proceedings.
- (7) While the Council Framework Decision of 15 March 2001 on the standing of victims in criminal proceedings (2001/220/JHA)¹⁵ establishes a set of victims' rights in criminal proceedings including the right to protection and compensation, victims of trafficking in human beings are vulnerable and therefore specific measures are necessary with regard to them. Such victims, who bear the consequences of the criminal activities related to trafficking in human beings including the removal of organs, should be protected from intimidation and from secondary victimisation, that is to say further victimisation or trauma deriving from the way the criminal procedure is carried out. Moreover, specific means to ensure effective protection and compensation should be established.
- (8) Victims need to be able to exercise their rights effectively. Therefore appropriate assistance should be available to victims before, during and after criminal proceedings. This Framework Decision establishes an obligation upon Member States to provide any victim with assistance, which should be sufficient to enable them to recover.
- (9) While Directive 2004/81/EC provides for the issue of a resident permit to victims of trafficking in human beings who are third country nationals, and Directive 2004/38/EC regulates the exercise of the right to move and reside freely in the territory of Member States by citizens of the Union and their families, including protection from expulsion, this Framework Decision establishes specific protective measures for any victim of trafficking in human beings, and does not deal with the conditions of their residence in the territory of Member States or any other issue falling within the Community competence.

- (10) In addition to measures available to adults, each Member State should ensure that specific protective measures are available to child victims.
- (11) Each Member State should establish and/or strengthen policies to prevent trafficking in human beings including measures to discourage the demand that fosters all forms of exploitation by means of research, information, awareness raising, and education. In such initiatives each Member State should adopt a gender perspective and a child-rights approach.
- (12) [Directive 2009/.../EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of ... providing for minimum standards on sanctions against employers of illegally staying third-country nationals] provides for penalties for employers of illegally staying third-country nationals who, while not having been charged with or convicted of trafficking in human beings, use work or services exacted from a person with the knowledge that she/he is a victim of such trafficking. In addition to that, Member States should take into consideration the possibility of imposing sanctions on the users of any service exacted from a victim, with the knowledge that she/he has been trafficked. This further criminalisation could include employers of legally staying third-country nationals and EU nationals, as well as buyers of sexual services from any trafficked person, irrespective of their nationality.
- (13) National monitoring systems such as National Rapporteurs or equivalent mechanisms should be established in order to collect data and carry out assessments on trafficking in human beings trends, measure the results of anti-trafficking policy, and give advice to governments and parliaments on the development of action against trafficking in human beings. Such mechanisms and measures are essential in order to establish effective anti-trafficking policy.
- (14) Since the objective of this Framework Decision, namely to fight against trafficking in human beings, cannot be sufficiently achieved by the Member States alone and can therefore, by reasons of the scale and effects be better achieved at Union level, the Union may adopt measures, in accordance with the principle of subsidiarity as referred to Article 2 of the Treaty on European Union and as set out in Article 5 of the Treaty establishing the European Community. In accordance with the principle of proportionality, as set out in the latter Article, this Framework Decision does not go beyond what is necessary to achieve that objective.
- (15) This Framework Decision respects fundamental rights and observes the principles recognised in particular by the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union and notably human dignity, prohibition of slavery, forced labour and trafficking in human beings, prohibition of torture and inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment, the rights of the child, the right to liberty and security, freedom of expression and information, protection of personal data, the right to an effective remedy and to a fair trial and the principles of legality and proportionality of criminal offences and penalties. In particular, this Framework Decision seeks to ensure full respect for these rights and principles.

HAS ADOPTED THIS FRAMEWORK DECISION:

3. Without prejudice to the rights of the defence, each Member State shall ensure that particularly vulnerable victims, in addition to the rights set forth in Framework Decision 2001/220, shall be entitled to specific treatment aimed at preventing secondary victimisation by avoiding, as far as possible and in accordance with the grounds defined by national legislation:
 - (a) visual contact between victims and offenders including during the giving of evidence such as interviews and cross-examination, by appropriate means including the use of audio-video facilities;
