Europol Unclassified – Basic Protection Level

1. Europol may process personal data for the purpose of operational analysis in accordance with Article 18(2)(c) of the Regulation. Such processing shall aim to support investigations through all methods and techniques by which information is collected, stored, processed and assessed.
2. The processing for operational analysis shall only take place within the context of operational analysis projects. An operational analysis project is a platform in which operational analysis can be conducted to support investigations against specific targets. The scope of such a platform can, in particular, be a crime area covering one or more types of crime; it can relate to a geographical dimension, or it can focus on particular crime structures, phenomena or incidents that due to their size, complexity or impact require a dedicated approach.
3. Operational analysis projects shall be created, in consultation with the HENUs, by a Decision of the Executive Director, which may be delegated to the responsible Deputy Executive Director. The Management Board and the EDPS shall be informed of the Decision opening such an operational analysis project.
4. The Decision opening an operational analysis project shall specify:
  - a) The specific purpose for which it is set up;
  - b) The categories of personal data which may be processed, and where it concerns personal data revealing racial or ethnic origin, political opinions, religious or philosophical beliefs or trade-union membership and processing of genetic data or data concerning a person's health or sex life, the reason why the inclusion of such data is considered to be strictly necessary and proportionate for the purposes of the project concerned;

  - d) The participating Member States and associated third parties of the operational analysis project;
  - e) Specific conditions for storage, access, transfer and use of the personal data, where these are stricter than the generally applicable provisions to the processing of personal data in general under the Regulation or this Decision.
5. The Executive Director, and by delegation the responsible Deputy Executive Director, may decide, in consultation with the HENUs, to close an operational analysis project, or amend the decision opening the project, including the changing of categories, its purpose, its scope, its members or its extension. The Management Board and the EDPS shall be informed of any such Decision to amend or close a project.
6. The Management Board may instruct the Executive Director to modify the Decision opening or amending an operational analysis project. The Management Board may also instruct the Executive Director to close a project.
7. The EDPS may address any comment on the opening, closure or amendment of an operational analysis project it deems necessary to Europol as controller of the data processing. Europol shall promptly inform the Management Board of any such comments received from the EDPS and seek without any undue delay to implement, in consultation with the Management Board any recommendations made by the EDPS in relation to the opening, closure or amendment of an operational analysis project.

8. Where it becomes apparent that personal data provided for operational analysis in one operational analysis project may be relevant for another operational analysis project, Europol may use it in that other project; however, further processing of that personal data shall only be permitted in so far as such further processing is necessary and proportionate, and the personal data comply with the conditions applicable to the other operational analysis project. In such cases, Europol shall inform the data provider without undue delay of its decision to use it in the other operational analysis project.<sup>2</sup> The justification for such use in another operational analysis project shall be duly documented.

Union bodies, third countries and international organisations, with whom the exchange of personal data is permitted under any of the provisions of Chapter V of the Regulation, may be invited to be associated to a certain operational analysis project if the purpose of the project is relevant to them or if the data processed in the project concerns them and if agreed by all participating Member States. Notwithstanding the possibilities to exchange personal data with private parties under Article 26 of the Regulation, private parties and private persons may not be associated to an operational analysis project.
11. Europol shall develop and implement, in close collaboration with the HENUs, a procedure for the transmission and acceptance of information in operational analysis projects. This procedure shall be submitted to the Management Board for approval. This procedure shall specify:
  - a) that contributions shall indicate for which operational analysis project or projects the information is intended. Where the data provider has not indicated this explicitly, Europol shall determine the appropriate destination in consultation with the data provider concerned.
  - b) that contributions shall be in accordance with the categories of personal data and data subjects as specified in the decision opening the operational analysis project.
  - c) that, unless explicitly stated otherwise, all contributions to a specific operational analysis project shall be deemed to be submitted for the purpose of operational analysis.
  - d) that if Europol believes, after appraisal, that personal data provided by Member States, Union bodies, third countries and international organisations for an operational analysis project is incorrect, inaccurate, no longer up to date or should not have been transmitted, it shall without undue delay inform the data provider, which shall provide its position on the matter, and take appropriate action, including restricting the processing of the personal data deemed incorrect, inaccurate or no longer up to date ensuring they can no longer be processed with the exception of storage.
12. Prior to the closure of an operational analysis project, Europol and the providers of the information contained within it, shall agree on the further retention and, where needed, appropriate reallocation of purpose or allocation to different operational analysis project(s), or destruction of said information.
