Subject:	Amended proposal for a Directive of the European Parliament and of the Council on common procedures for granting and withdrawing international protection status (Recast) [First reading] - Preparation for the first informal trilogue

Introduction

In June 2011, the Commission submitted to the European Parliament and the Council an Amended recast of the Asylum Procedures Directive (11207/11). The Commission amended its initial proposal of October 2009 with a view to boosting the negotiations by taking into account the European Parliament's first reading Position of April 2011 and the views expressed in the Council.

The objectives of the amended recast of the Asylum Procedures Directive remained the same as those of the initial recast. Firstly, to establish common procedures so that similar cases are treated alike and result in the same outcome. Secondly, to have procedures that are fast and fair, cost-effective and help to tackle abusive claims. Thirdly, to ensure full respect of fundamental rights as it is informed by developing case law of the Court of Justice and the European Court of Human Rights. And, finally, to have rules that take account of the particularities of national asylum and legal systems.

The recast of this directive is part of a series of legislative proposals in the field of asylum. The Commission submitted these proposals in keeping with the commitment of the European Council to establish a Common European Asylum System by 2012.

State of Play

The Asylum Working Party, the Justice and Home Affairs Counsellors and the Strategic Committee on Immigration, Frontiers and Asylum (SCIFA) have examined the proposal in detail. The result of this examination is reflected in document 9645/12.

In accordance with Protocol No. 21 on the position of the United Kingdom and Ireland in respect of the Area of Freedom, Security and Justice, annexed to the Treaty on European Union, and to the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, the United Kingdom and Ireland are not taking part in the adoption of the recast of the Reception Conditions Directive. Also, Denmark does not take part in its adoption and is not bound by it or subject to its application in accordance with the Protocol on the position of Denmark.

Compromise package

With a view to preparing a position of Council in order to negotiate an agreement with the European Parliament in an early second reading, the Presidency invites the Committee of Permanent Representatives to examine the main outstanding issues in the text of the Asylum Procedures Directive as it appears in Annex I. New Presidency suggestions in comparison to document 9543/12 are indicated in bold.

1. Applicants in need of special procedural guarantees – Articles 2(d), 4(3), 24 and recital 23

The proposed Directive specifies how Member States shall deal with applicants for international protection who have special procedural needs whereas the current directive has no such provisions. This is suggested in order to ensure compliance with the principle of non-discrimination (in line with EU and international law) which requires Member States to treat differently persons whose situations are significantly different. It is also important in view of ensuring that all Member States have the necessary tools to effectively apply the Qualification Directive. Recital 23 of the proposed Directive contains a non - exhaustive list of circumstances which may imply that a given applicant has such needs. The definition of an applicant in need of special procedural guarantees is provided in Article 2(d) and the required qualifications of personnel interviewing such applicants are mentioned in Article 4(3). In the Presidency's view these articles have reached their final form.

During the negotiations so far Article 24 has been substantially changed. In particular it has been decided not to exempt any applicants in need of special procedural guarantees from the possibility of being processed in accelerated procedures in accordance with Article 31(6) or from the possibility of having their claims decided as manifestly unfounded in accordance with Article 32(2). The Commission has strongly opposed this.

The current scope of Article 24 is to describe what Member States shall do in order to identify applicants in need of special procedural guarantees and how they shall be supported. It contains no result-based obligations.

Some delegations believe that the current wording of the article will require the establishment of an extra, costly and time consuming procedure which they wish to avoid.

The Presidency shares the view that additional procedural guarantees should only be introduced where duly justified. The Presidency does, however, also share the view of some Member States and the Commission that there is a need to identify applicants in need of special procedural guarantees in view of complying with the principle of non-discrimination and allowing them to comply with the obligations and benefit from the rights of the Directive – as all other asylum seekers.

The Presidency believes that the current text provides Member States with sufficient flexibility in order to arrange how to fulfil their obligations in accordance with this article. In order to further clarify that the circumstances mentioned therein are only examples, the Presidency suggests inserting the words “inter alia” in recital (23). With this insertion the Presidency considers that the current text strikes a fair balance between the expressed views on this sensitive issue and invites the Committee of Permanent Representatives to consider whether the current text can be endorsed as a viable compromise.

2. Guarantees for unaccompanied minors – Article 25

Increasing procedural guarantees for unaccompanied minors who apply for international protection is one of the main goals of the proposed Directive. To that end the original text of the Article contained a paragraph (6) which exempted unaccompanied minors from the possibility of being processed in accordance with Articles 20(3), 31(6), 32(2), 33(2)(c), 38 and 43 thereby ensuring them a higher level of procedural safeguards.

A large number of delegations opposed this idea expressing fear that such a solution might lead to an unwarranted loss of efficiency in asylum procedures. After several attempts to find a compromise the Presidency has proposed to delete the paragraph altogether. The Commission has strongly opposed this deletion. Some Member States also regretted the deletion and called for appropriate safeguards to be provided to unaccompanied minors.

The Presidency understands very well the views of both Member States and of the Commission and has come to the conclusion that finding a compromise which will encompass all of them is almost impossible.

As part of the overall compromise package the Presidency finds that the deleted former Paragraph 6 should remain deleted.

Based on the discussions at Counsellors level on 10 May 2012 the Presidency proposes minor changes to the wording of Paragraphs 1 and 5. In Paragraph 1 which i.a. speaks of the qualifications of legal representatives for unaccompanied minors in asylum procedures the Presidency proposes to delete the word “childcare” and slightly change the surrounding text in order to clarify that the required qualifications of the legal representative are different from those of a representative of a child in the field of social, material, educational and other non-legal/procedurally related issues. In Paragraph 5 which concerns the use of medical examinations to determine the age of unaccompanied minors the Presidency proposes to replace the words “If after the medical examination” by the words “If thereafter”. Hereby it is intended to clarify that in a given case the result of the medical examination is not necessarily the only available evidence at hand.

3. Examination procedure – Article 31

Article 31 regulates how Member States shall process applications for international protection at first instance. Paragraph 2 determines as a main rule that claims for international protection shall be determined within six months after they have been lodged. Paragraph 3 states the exceptions to this main rule and provides that in these cases the time limit of six months may be extended by an additional 12 months.

The setting up of time limits for first instance decisions is new compared to the existing Directive. While there seems to be general agreement that this is a good idea some delegations wish in certain cases to be able to prolong the extension of the time limit beyond 12 months.

The Presidency suggests maintaining the current text.

Article 31(6) regulates the circumstances under which Member States may provide that an examination of an asylum claim may be accelerated and/or conducted at the border.

The current Directive contains 16 such circumstances which in the proposed Directive originally had been reduced to 7. During negotiations in the Council's preparatory bodies the number of circumstances has been increased to 10 which the Commission has opposed. On the other hand some delegations have expressed a wish to insert more circumstances.

The Presidency finds that the current text provides for sufficient and reasonable possibilities to accelerate examination procedures at first instance and therefore suggests leaving the text unchanged.

Based on the discussions at Counsellors level on 10 May 2012 the Presidency proposes a minor change to the wording of Paragraphs 7 which concerns time limits for the adoption of decisions in accelerated procedures. Whereas the former wording made the laying down of reasonable time limits obligatory the current allows Member States to lay down time limits if they wish. If they decide to do so those time limits shall be reasonable.

4. Specific rules following the rejection or inadmissibility of a subsequent application – Article 41

It is generally recognised that subsequent applications for international protection are frequent, that sometimes with short intervals individual applicants file several such applications and that at times such applications may be abusive.

The intention of Article 41 in the proposed Directive is to give Member States more flexibility concerning granting or not granting right to remain on their territory during first instance procedures when a subsequent application is made than under the current Directive. Therefore the text states that provided that the principle of non-refoulement is respected Member States need only grant right to remain during first instance procedures of one subsequent application. The Commission has pointed out that the current text provides Member States with sufficient flexibility to uphold existing practices concerning the processing of subsequent applications. Also the need to provide applicants with an effective opportunity to raise sur place claims makes it impossible to insert additional flexibility without risking going under the minimum standard allowed under the Charter of Fundamental rights and the European Convention on Human Rights.

A number of delegations wish to be able to deny right to remain on their territory during first instance procedures of all subsequent applications claiming that the fact that all Member States respect the principle of non-refoulement is sufficient guarantee in these cases.

The Presidency understands the views of both the delegations and of the Commission and has after numerous attempts come to the conclusion that reaching a compromise which will resolve the differences of opinion is highly unlikely.

Based on the discussions at Counsellors' level on 10 May 2012, the Presidency proposes a minor change to the wording of the Article whereby the words “is of the opinion” are replaced by the word “considers” which is thought to be more appropriate.

As part of the overall compromise package the Presidency finds that the text as it now stands constitutes an acceptable solution and suggests maintaining it.

5. The right to an effective remedy – Article 46

Access to an effective remedy in asylum procedures in case of a negative decision is a fundamental right. One of the prerequisites for an effective remedy is the right to remain on the territory of the Member State in question while awaiting the outcome of the remedy. Consequently Paragraph 5 of the proposed Directive establishes this as the main rule whereas Paragraph 6 contains the exceptions to this main rule.

One of the exceptions foreseen in the original text (Article 46(6)(b)) concerns decisions to consider an application inadmissible because another Member State has granted refugee status or because it is a subsequent application without new elements related to the substance of the claim. Based on the discussions at Counsellors level on 10 May 2012 the Presidency proposes to include decisions to consider an application inadmissible because a non Member State is considered to be a first country of asylum for the applicant (Article 33(2)(b)).

During negotiations so far in the Council's preparatory bodies the list of exceptions in Paragraph 6 has been amended so as to include decisions by Member States to reject reopening an application that has been considered implicitly withdrawn in accordance with Article 28 and decisions not to examine or not to fully examine an application where there is a safe third country as described in Article 39. The Commission has expressed concerns about the addition of these two new exceptions.

Some delegations wish to expand the list of exceptions further, something which is strongly opposed by the Commission.

With the above-mentioned addition to Article 46(6)(b) the Presidency suggests keeping the list of exceptions as it now stands.

Where a Member State decides to apply one of the exceptions to a given application Article 46(6) stipulates that a court or tribunal shall have the power, either acting upon request from the applicant or acting ex officio, to rule whether or not the applicant shall be allowed to remain on the territory pending the outcome of the remedy.

Finally Article 46(6) stipulates that the exceptions mentioned therein do not apply to applications dealt with in border procedures in accordance with Article 43. A number of delegations wish to delete this provision. This is strongly opposed by the Commission which considers such a deletion to be incompatible with international case law. Council Legal Service shares this opinion.

The Presidency suggests keeping the current wording.

Article 46(7) stipulates a right for the applicant to remain on the territory of the Member State in question until the court or tribunal mentioned in Paragraph 6 has decided whether or not he/she may remain on the territory pending the outcome of the remedy.

Several delegations wish to delete or make exceptions to this provision fearing that it can be abused. The Commission strongly opposes deleting or amending the Paragraph arguing that this will be incompatible with international case law. Council Legal Service shares this opinion.

The Presidency suggests keeping the current wording.

6. Other items

The Presidency suggests to insert in Article 9 (2) a modification to the exception of surrendering or extraditing a person to a third country if this is the applicant's country of origin, when the applicant is considered in accordance with Article 21 (2) of Directive 2011/95/EU to be a danger to the security of the Member State in which he/she is present. The Presidency hereby intends to bring this provision a par with the Qualifications Directive and to address concerns expressed by the delegations on this issue.

Finally, following the discussions among JHA Counsellors, changes have been made as stipulated in the Annex to Articles 6(4) and 51(2).

Conclusion

The Presidency invites the Committee of Permanent Representatives to seek agreement on the abovementioned issues with a view to authorizing the Presidency to seek an early second reading agreement with the European Parliament.

- (6) The European Council, at its meeting of 4 November 2004, adopted the Hague Programme, which set the objectives to be implemented in the area of freedom, security and justice in the period 2005-2010. In this respect, the Hague Programme invited the European Commission to conclude the evaluation of the first phase legal instruments and to submit the second phase instruments and measures to the Council and the European Parliament. In accordance with the Hague Programme, the objective to be pursued for the creation of the Common European Asylum System is the establishment of a common asylum procedure and a uniform status valid throughout the Union.

- (7) In the European Pact on Immigration and Asylum, adopted on 16 October 2008, the European Council noted that considerable disparities remain between one Member State and another concerning the grant of protection and called for new initiatives, including a proposal for establishing a single asylum procedure comprising common guarantees, to complete the establishment of a Common European Asylum System, provided for in the Hague Programme.
- (8) The European Council, at its meeting of 10-11 December 2009, adopted the Stockholm Programme which reconfirmed the commitment to establishing a common area of protection and solidarity based on a common asylum procedure and a uniform status for those granted international protection based on high protection standards and fair and effective procedures by 2012. The Stockholm Programme affirmed that people in need of international protection must be ensured access to legally safe and efficient asylum procedures. In accordance with the Stockholm Programme, individuals, regardless of the Member State in which their application for asylum is lodged, should be offered the same level of treatment as regards procedural arrangements and status determination. The objective should be that similar cases should be treated alike and result in the same outcome.
- (9) The resources of the European Refugee Fund and of the European Asylum Support Office, established by Regulation (EU) No 439/2010 of the European Parliament and of the Council⁴, should be mobilised to provide adequate support to the Member States' efforts relating to the implementation of the standards set in the second phase of the Common European Asylum System, in particular to those Member States which are faced with specific and disproportionate pressures on their asylum systems, due in particular to their geographical or demographic situation.

- (17) It is also in the interest of both Member States and applicants to ensure a correct recognition of international protection needs already at first instance. To that end, applicants should be provided at first instance, free of charge, with legal and procedural information, taking into account their particular circumstances. The provision of such information should inter alia enable the applicants to better understand the procedure, thus helping them to comply with the relevant obligations. It would be disproportionate to require Member States to provide such information only through the services of qualified lawyers. Member States should therefore have the possibility to find the most appropriate modalities for the provision of such information, such as through non-governmental organisations, government officials or specialised services of the State.
- (18) In appeals procedures, subject to certain conditions, applicants should be granted free legal assistance and representation provided by persons competent to do so under national law. - (22) In order to facilitate access to the examination procedure at border crossing points and in detention facilities, information should be made available on the possibility to request international protection. Basic communication necessary to enable the competent authorities to understand if persons declare their wish to apply for international protection should be ensured through interpretation arrangements.
- (23) Certain applicants may be in need of special procedural guarantees due to inter alia their age, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity, disability, serious illness, mental disorders or consequences of torture, rape or other serious forms of psychological, physical or sexual violence. - (24) National measures dealing with identification and documentation of symptoms and signs of torture or other serious acts of physical or mental violence, including acts of sexual violence, in procedures covered by this Directive may inter alia be based on the Manual on Effective Investigation and Documentation of Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (Istanbul Protocol).

- (25) With a view to ensuring substantive equality between female and male applicants, examination procedures should be gender sensitive. In particular, personal interviews should be organised in a way which makes it possible for both female and male applicants to speak about their past experiences in cases involving gender based persecution. The complexity of gender related claims should be properly taken into account in procedures based on the safe third country concept, the safe country of origin concept or the notion of subsequent applications.

- (31) Given the level of harmonisation achieved on the qualification of third country nationals and stateless persons as refugees, common criteria for designating third countries as safe countries of origin should be established.

In the light of the political importance of the designation of safe countries of origin, in particular in view of the implications of an assessment of the human rights situation in a country of origin and its implications for the policies of the European Union in the field of external relations, the Council should take any decisions on the establishment or amendment of the list, after consultation of the European Parliament.~~

- (33) The designation of a third country as a safe country of origin for the purposes of this Directive cannot establish an absolute guarantee of safety for nationals of that country. By its very nature, the assessment underlying the designation can only take into account the general civil, legal and political circumstances in that country and whether actors of persecution, torture or inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment are subject to sanction in practice when found liable in the country concerned. For this reason, it is important that, where an applicant shows that there are ⇒ valid ⇐ ~~serious~~ reasons to consider the country not to be safe in his/her particular circumstances, the designation of the country as safe can no longer be considered relevant for him/her.
