

Decensoring Dagbladet

There are a couple images in the latest Dagbladet story from the Snowden trove that were originally blurred instead of blacked out. This allowed the text to be recovered. There was no particular point in making a project out of the first, since it had already been published previously. The second was completely decoded in a matter of a few hours.

Subsequent additions included the exchange of FISINT and Space Collection in 1963, ELINT in 1970, and PROFORMA and COMINT in 1994. While NIS produces all-source reports combining SIGINT, HUMINT, the strength of the service remains its SIGINT capabilities. Over time, the NIS	TOP SECRET//COMINT//REL TO USA, NOR  National Security Agency/Central Security Service 17 April 2013 Information Paper (S//REL TO USA, NOR) Subject: NSA Intelligence Relationship with Norway (U) Introduction (TS//SI//REL TO USA, NOR) The SIGINT relationship between the National Security Agency (NSA) and the Norwegian Intelligence Service (NIS) began informally in 1952, and was formalized in 1954 when both services signed the Norway – United States of America (NORUSA) SIGINT agreement.
