UPDATE ON ANONYMITY APPLICATIONS - N519 (“MARCO JACOBS”)

The Inquiry has received confirmation that no restriction is sought over the undercover identity used by the police officer core participant known as N519, which was “Marco Jacobs”. The list of core participants on the Inquiry website has been updated accordingly.

N519 does seek a restriction over his real identity, and his anonymity application will be published on the Inquiry website in due course.

BACKGROUND

The work of the Inquiry ranges across the full scope of undercover policing work and will look at the work of the Special Demonstration Squad, the National Public Order Intelligence Unit and police forces in England and Wales. The Inquiry will also examine whether people may have been wrongly convicted in cases involving undercover police officers, and refer any such cases to a separate panel for consideration.

The work of the Inquiry will fall into three modules:

1. Module one will look at what happened in the deployment of undercover officers in the past, their conduct, and the impact of their activities on themselves and others.

2. Module two will look at the management and oversight of undercover officers, including their selection, training, supervision and care after the end of an undercover deployment. This section will also look at the law and other rules covering undercover policing.

3. Module three will make recommendations about how undercover policing should be conducted in future.
