Amendments to a draft act

In amendments by Parliament, amendments to draft acts are highlighted in bold italics. Highlighting in normal italics is an indication for the relevant departments showing parts of the draft act which may require correction when the final text is prepared – for instance, obvious errors or omissions in a language version. Suggested corrections of this kind are subject to the agreement of the departments concerned.

The heading for any amendment to an existing act that the draft act seeks to amend includes a third line identifying the existing act and a fourth line identifying the provision in that act that Parliament wishes to amend. Passages in an existing act that Parliament wishes to amend, but that the draft act has left unchanged, are highlighted in bold. Any deletions that Parliament wishes to make in such passages are indicated thus: [...].

Amendment 1

Proposal for a directive
Recital 1

Text proposed by the Commission

(1) The main motive for cross-border organised crime is financial gain. In order to be effective, law enforcement and judicial authorities should be given the means to trace, freeze, manage and confiscate the proceeds of crime.

Amendment

(1) The main motive for most crime, and particularly cross-border organised crime, is financial gain. In order to be effective, law enforcement and judicial authorities should be given all means to trace, freeze, manage and confiscate the proceeds of crime.

Or. en

Justification

Financial gain is the goal of most crime, not only of cross-border organised crime.

Considering the low efficiency of the current system, all means should be given to trace, freeze, manage and confiscate proceeds of crime.

Amendment 2

Proposal for a directive
Recital 3

Text proposed by the Commission

(3) Although existing statistics are limited, the amounts recovered from criminal assets in the Union seem insufficient compared to the estimated proceeds of crime. Studies have shown that, although regulated by EU legislation and national laws, confiscation procedures remain underutilised.

Amendment

(3) Although existing statistics are limited, the amounts recovered from criminal assets in the Union seem extremely low compared to the estimated proceeds of crime. Studies have shown that, although regulated by EU legislation and national laws, confiscation procedures remain underutilised and laws at national level are uneven.

Or. en

Justification

The point it is not that asset recovery are insufficient but rather that they are low compared the estimated monetary income of crime.

The diversity of the national regulations must be pointed out as a reason for this Directive proposal. Diverse legislation affects efficiency and cooperation in particular in trans-border organized and other crime.

Amendment 3

Proposal for a directive
Recital 11

Text proposed by the Commission

(11) In accordance with the principle of ne bis in idem it is appropriate to exclude from extended confiscation the proceeds of alleged criminal activities for which the affected person has been finally acquitted in a previous trial or in other cases where the ne bis in idem principle applies. Extended confiscation should also be excluded where the similar criminal activities could not be the subject of criminal proceedings due to prescription under national criminal law.

deleted

Or. en

Justification

This recital should be deleted for two reasons: (i) it limits the current legal framework for extended confiscation in Council Decision no 2005/212/JH which contradicts the very idea of strengthening the current system and increase its efficiency that is the goal of this proposal; (ii) for consistency with the deletion of Article 4 Paragraph 2 point (b).

Amendment 4

Recital 12

Text proposed by the Commission

(12) The issuance of confiscation orders generally requires a criminal conviction. In some cases, even in the absence of a criminal conviction, it should be possible still be possible to confiscate assets in order to disrupt criminal activities and ensure that profits resulting from criminal activities are not reinvested into the licit economy. Some Member States allow confiscation where there is insufficient evidence for a criminal prosecution, if a court considers on the balance of probabilities that the property is of illicit origin, and also in situations where a suspect or accused person becomes a fugitive to avoid prosecution, is unable to stand trial for other reasons or died before the end of criminal proceedings. This is referred to as non-conviction based confiscation. Provision should be made to enable non-conviction based confiscation in at least the latter, limited, circumstances in all Member States. This is in line with Article 54.1.c) of the United Nations Convention against Corruption, which provides that each State Party is to consider taking the necessary measures to allow confiscation of illicitly acquired property without a criminal conviction, including in cases in which the offender cannot be prosecuted by reason of death, flight or absence.

Justification

This recital should be amended for reasons of consistency with the deletion of Article 5 points (a) and (b).

Amendment 5

Article 2 – point 6

Amendment

(6) 'criminal offence' means a criminal offence punishable by a custodial sentence of a maximum length of at least 12 months.

(a) the Convention drawn up on the basis of Article K.3 (2) (c) of the Treaty of the European Union on the fight against corruption involving officials of the European Communities or officials of the Member States of the European Union,

(b) Council Framework Decision 2000/383/JHA of 29 May 2000 on increasing protection by criminal penalties and other sanctions against counterfeiting in connection with the introduction of the euro,

(c) Council Framework Decision 2001/413/JHA of 28 May 2001 on combating fraud and counterfeiting on non-cash means of payment,

(e) Council Framework Decision 2001/500/JHA of 26 June 2001 on money laundering, the identification, tracing, freezing, seizing and confiscation of instrumentalities and the proceeds of crime,

(f) Council Framework Decision 2003/568/JHA on combating corruption in the private sector,

(g) Council Framework Decision 2004/757/JHA of 25 October 2004 laying down minimum provisions on the constituent elements of criminal acts and penalties in the field of illicit drug trafficking,

(h) Council Framework Decision 2005/222/JHA of 24 February 2005 on attacks against information systems,

(i) Council Framework Decision 2008/841/JHA of 24 October 2008 on the fight against organised crime,
(j) Directive 2011/36/EU of 5 April 2011 on preventing and combating trafficking in human beings and protecting its victims, and replacing Council Framework Decision 2002/629/JHA,

Or. en

Justification

Framework decision 2005/212/JHA limits its scope of application to already harmonised offences only in the case of extended confiscation. Limiting the scope of this proposed Directive to the criminal offences harmonised and listed in Article 2 point 6 means stepping backwards. On the contrary, considering a 'criminal offence' an offence punishable by a custodial sentence for a maximum period of at least 12 months means keeping the same scope as in Directive 2005/212/JHA which requires harmonisation only for extended confiscation.

Or. en

Justification

The three amendments above were proposed because their provisions are implied by the introductory text of Paragraph 2. It is clear that if a person receives a property for free or for an amount lower than its market value that person is in a position to have reasonable suspicions concerning the origin of the property.

Amendment 24

Article 7 – paragraph 1

Text proposed by the Commission

1. Each Member State shall take the necessary measures to enable it to freeze property in danger of being dissipated, hidden or transferred out of the jurisdiction with a view to possible later confiscation. Such measures shall be ordered by a court.

Amendment

Each Member State shall take the necessary measures to enable it to freeze property immediately with a view to possible later confiscation. The person affected by the measures provided for in this Article shall have a right of appeal to a court.

Or. en

Justification

Freezing is the most important tool and a first step in order to recover the instrumentalities and proceeds of crime, therefore the rules governing this measure should be strengthened.

Article 8 – paragraph 1

Each Member State shall take the necessary measures to ensure that the persons whose instrumentalities and proceeds of crime are confiscated under this Directive, irrespective of their ownership at the time of confiscation, have the right to an effective remedy, including the right to a fair trial.

Or. en

In the cases referred to in Article 5, the person whose property is affected by the decision to confiscate shall be represented by a lawyer throughout the proceedings in order to pursue the rights of the defence of the person relating to the establishment of the criminal offence and to the determination of the proceeds and instrumentalities.

Amendment

deleted

Justification

This amendment was proposed because a lawyer should be provided in accordance with the procedural rules of every Member State to the persons who are entitled to it. Any person who wishes to hire a lawyer is free to do so in any jurisdiction and there is no need for the Directive to introduce a new obligation for the Member States in this respect.

necessary measures to make it possible to determine the precise extent of the property to be confiscated following a final conviction for a criminal offence or following proceedings as foreseen in Article 5, that has resulted in a decision to confiscate, and to allow further measures to be taken to the extent necessary to effectively execute that decision to confiscate.

Or. en

Justification

This Article must be amended for reasons of consistency with the amendments to Articles 3 and 5
The European Parliament has called on the Commission to propose new legislation on confiscation for a long time. By its own initiative report adopted in October 2011, the Parliament stressed in particular the need for rules on the effective use of extended and non-conviction based confiscation, rules allowing for the confiscation of assets transferred to third parties. In addition, the Parliament encouraged the introduction of instruments in national legal systems which, under criminal, civil or fiscal law, as appropriate, mitigate the burden of proof concerning the origin of assets held by a person accused of an offence related to organised crime.

The proposal for a Directive on the freezing and confiscation of proceeds of crime in the European Union was adopted by the European Commission on 12 March 2012. This Directive lays down the minimum rules for Member States with respect to freezing and confiscation of criminal assets through direct confiscation, value confiscation, extended confiscation, non-conviction based confiscation and third party confiscation.

The Rapporteur generally supports the Commission proposal. The adoption of those minimum rules will harmonise the Member States’ freezing and confiscation regimes facilitating mutual trust and effective cross-border cooperation. It will also constitute a step towards strengthening the mutual recognition of freezing and confiscation orders which is an important aspect of the fight against cross-border serious and organized crime in the EU.

With this report the Rapporteur intends to reinforce the provisions of non-conviction based confiscation and extended confiscation so as to make them more efficient in order to actually serve the purpose of preventing the use of proceeds of crime for committing future crimes or their reinvestment into licit activities.

Concerning the non-conviction based confiscation the Rapporteur notes that this system which was first used in the USA now appears to be more and more globally spread. Jurisdictions which have introduced non-conviction based confiscation legislation include: Italy, Ireland, United Kingdom, Albania, Bulgaria, Slovakia, Australia, South Africa, the Canadian provinces of Alberta and Ontario. At European level the existent systems of non-conviction based confiscation have been debated both in front of national Courts as well as the European Court of Human Rights and were considered compatible with national constitutional requirements and those of the European Court, provided that they are adopted by a judicial authority, with full respect of the rights of the defence and of bona fide third parties, and that they can be challenged before a court. These basic safeguards have also been included in the present Directive.

The provisions on extended confiscation were strengthened so that they provide for a single minimum standard which does not fall below the threshold set by Framework Decision 2005/212/JHA.
