Proposal for rejection

The European Parliament rejects the Commission proposal.

Or. en

Justification

"Interoperability is not primarily a technical choice, it is first and foremost a political choice to be made, with significant legal and societal implications in the years to come. Against the backdrop of the clear trend to mix distinct EU law and policy objectives, as well as granting law enforcement routine access to non-law enforcement databases, the decision of the EU legislator to make large-scale IT systems interoperable would not only permanently and profoundly affect their structure and their way of operating, but would also change the way legal principles have been interpreted in this area so far and would as such mark a 'point of no return'." (from Paragraph 143 of EDPS opinion, 2018/C 233/07)

Amendment

(25) *The common identity repository (CIR) should provide for a shared container for identity and biometric data of third-country nationals registered in the EES, the VIS, [the ETIAS], Eurodac and the [ECRIS-TCN system], serving as the shared component between these systems for storage of this data, and to allow its querying. deleted

Justification

The Common Identity Repository is unnecessary to achieve the aims of interoperability and should be deleted. Storing the personal data of hundreds of millions of third country nationals from multiple databases in a single home on the grounds of efficiency contravenes the principles of purpose limitation and data minimisation. The underlying databases will in any case continue to store the personal data and can be queried by the ESP of sBMS as required.

Amendment

(34) The two-step data consultation approach is particularly valuable in cases where the suspect, perpetrator or suspected victim of a terrorist offence or other serious criminal offence is unknown. In those cases, using the European Search Portal or the shared Biometric Matching Service should enable the relevant authority to identify the information system that knows the suspect, perpetrator or suspected victim in one single search, following the necessary checks in national databases and once a query of the automated fingerprint identification system of other Member States under Decision 2008/615/JHA has been launched. The principle of prior search in national databases and AFIS which were designed specifically for preventing, detecting and investigating terrorist offences or other serious criminal offences before searching in other EU information systems which do not have that as their primary purpose helps to ensure the necessity and proportionality of such a search.

(42) The manual verification of multiple identities should be ensured by the authority creating or updating the data that triggered a hit resulting in a link with data already stored in another EU information system. The authority responsible for the verification of multiple identities should assess whether there are multiple lawful or unlawful identities. Such assessment should be performed where possible in the presence of the third-country national and where necessary by requesting additional clarifications or information. Such assessment should be performed without delay, in line with legal requirements for the accuracy of information under Union and national law.

Amendment

(42) The manual verification of multiple identities should be ensured by the authority creating or updating the data that triggered a hit resulting in a link with data already stored in another EU information system as described in this Regulation in full respect of access rights granted under Union and national law. The authority responsible for the verification of multiple identities should assess whether there are multiple lawful or unlawful identities. Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(60a) This Regulation should contain clear provisions on liability and right to compensation for unlawful processing of personal data or from any other act incompatible with it, without prejudice to the right to compensation from, and liability of the controller or processor under Regulation (EU) 2016/679, Directive EU 2016/680 and Regulation EU45/2001. With regard to EU-LISA as a data processor, it should be responsible for the damage provoked, if and where it does not comply with the specific obligations of this Regulation, or where it has acted outside or contrary to lawful instructions of the Member State designated as the data controller.

Or. en

Amendment 335
Miriam Dalli

Proposal for a regulation
Recital 65 a (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(65a) As interoperability components will involve the processing of significant amounts of sensitive personal data, it is important that persons whose data is processed through those components can effectively exercise their rights as data subjects as laid down in Regulation (EU) 2016/679, Directive (EU) 680/2016 and Regulation (EC) No 45/2001. In that regard, in the same way as Member State authorities have been provided with a single portal to carry out searches of EU information systems, so data subjects should be provided with a single web service through which they can exercise their rights to access, rectification, erasure and restriction. eu.LISA should establish such a web service and host it in its technical site. As eu.LISA is not responsible for the entry of personal data or the verification of identities, the request should be transmitted via the web service to either the Member State responsible for the manual verification of different identities or the Member State responsible for the entry of the data into the underlying information system.

Or. en

Justification

It is important that third country nationals and other data subjects whose sensitive personal data will be processed through interoperability components can effectively exercise the rights granted to them under EU data protection rules. In that regard, as interoperability provides a one-stop shop for national authorities seeking to identify an individual or to clarify the existence of more than one identity for an individual, third country nationals - especially those not present on EU territory - should have a one-stop shop for launching requests for access, correction, erasure or rectification of their personal data. This should be without prejudice to their right to address themselves directly to the Member State responsible.

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(68a) Article 8 (2) of the European Convention on Human Rights states that any interference with the right to respect for private life, must pursue a legitimate aim and must be both necessary and proportionate except in such cases when, in accordance with the law such an action is necessary in a democratic society in the interests of national security, public safety or the economic well-being of the country, for the prevention of disorder or crime, for the protection of health or morals, or for the protection of the rights and freedoms of others.

Or. en

Justification

The right to the protection of personal data and the right to respect for private life are enshrined both within EU law (GDPR) and within EU's highest human rights instruments. As this legislation deals with both personal data and privacy of persons, it is essential that both instruments are reflected within the recitals of the law.

Text proposed by the Commission

Processing of personal data for the purposes of this Regulation shall not result in discrimination against persons on any grounds such as sex, racial or ethnic origin, religion or belief, disability, age or sexual orientation. It shall fully respect human dignity and integrity. Particular attention shall be paid to children, the elderly and persons with a disability.

Amendment

This Regulation shall ensure respect of the fundamental rights and the observation of the principles recognised in the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union and shall be applied in accordance with those rights and principles.

Processing of personal data for the purposes of this Regulation shall not result, either directly or indirectly, in undue interference with the right to respect for private and family life and the right to protection of personal data.

Or. en

Justification

The right to the protection of personal data and the right to respect for private life are enshrined within the EU's highest human rights instruments- The Charter of Fundamental Rights and the European Convention of Human Rights. These principles are reflected both in GDPR and the Police Directive, and thus provisions from both legislations must apply in this regard.

2. The authorities referred to in paragraph 1 shall use the ESP to search data related to persons or their travel documents in the central systems of Eurodac and [the ECRIS-TCN system] in accordance with their access rights under Union and national law. They shall also use the ESP to query the CIR in accordance with their access rights under this Regulation for the purposes referred to in Articles 20, 21 and 22.

Amendment

2. Where they are required under Union law to search data related to persons or their travel documents in the EES, the VIS and [the ETIAS], the authorities referred to in paragraph 1 shall use the ESP to search such data in accordance with their access rights under Union and national law.

Or. en

Justification

Reformulation to clarify that the obligation on MS authorities to use the ESP can arise only in situations where an authority is required under Union law to check a person's identity or travel document. This is without prejudice to the option for MS authorities of using the ESP for SIS checks laid down in paragraph 3.
